Gassin

This village is situated in the center of the St Tropez peninsula. It is located on a large hill (201m height) and is just four kilometers away from the sea. The village has its crooked streets and old houses preserved through the centuries. The location of this village is truly unique. You can see from the village of vineyards, forests and the Gulf of St. Tropez. On the coast is Port Gassin, this port is significantly expanding and is increasingly beginning to resemble the ports of Port Grimaud and Cogolin.

Environment Presquile (Peninsula) de St Tropez

Those who want to retire, just out of the turbulent life on the coast is in the Presqu'île de St.-Tropez peninsula, two villages found that seem unchanged for centuries. Atop a 201 meter hill lies Gassin, in the past a lookout from which all the Golfe St Tropez was monitored. That was the time of the Moorish invasions continual necessity. The village is accessible via some narrow, steep, but nicely located roads from the surrounding roads. The houses appear stacked together, as more and more homes were to be built. Within the walls in the past The streets, gates, archways and staircases making Gassin very scenic.

Ramatuelle (2000 inhabitants) is just such an old Provençal village. The hill on which it is built, is covered with vineyards. The outer row of houses is as it were the walls, which is interrupted by the gate of the Saracens. The story goes that people at one of these pirate raids drove by shooting. Them with beehives

The church has a beautiful portal from 1620 of a rare, green mottled stone (serpentine, also called green marble).

The peninsula has several viewpoints: from Gassin and Ramatuelle, and the intervening ruins of Moulins, from the rocky headlands St. Tropez, Camarat and Lardier, the Col de Colle Basse, the Colline de Bestagne (on foot only) and chapel Ste-Anne, both just outside St Tropez. The village of Cogolin (8000 inhabitants) is a lively commercial center with a population of farmers and artisans. Especially the art of weaving that is at a high level (tapis and tissus, a weaving mill can be visited on weekdays). Here, too pipes made of heather roots. In the valley one collects the straight reeds, whose rods and neatly made. Wind Agriculture is focused on wine. As a traditional Provencal village also has Cogolin characteristic narrow streets and gates. There is a church from the 14th century.

Cogolin This village is situated on the edge of the Massif des Maures and overlooks the Gulf of St. Tropez. This village attracts many visitors throughout the year. In the village you can still visit an old windmill. In addition, you will also find a 14th century bell tower. But this town is also connected to the sea. Just four kilometers from the village is the marina of Cogolin. Here, more than 1,500 yachts can moor. The marina is fully equipped. There are many shops where one can strike stores and many cafes and restaurants where you can quench your thirst.

Cogolin is a suitable starting point (walking) tours of the Massif des Maures. A car journey of approximately 70 kilometers through the valley of Môle direction Bormes-les-Mimosas, where you can take.
